ÅF wins technical advisory services order for Eneco's Bioenergy plant project in the Netherlands.

ÅF has won an order including qualified technical advisory services for a new Bioenergy plant in the Netherlands constructed by Eneco.

The order is worth over a million Euros for ÅF.

Eneco is an integrated energy company (top three in the Netherlands) specialised in production, trading, transmission and supply of gas, electricity and heat and related services. In 2011 the company launched the construction of the 49.9 MW bioenergy plant in the Dutch municipality of Delfzijl. The plant, scheduled to be operational in 2013, will annually convert approximately 300,000 tons of wood chips from recycled waste wood into green electricity (this equals 120,000 households).
